vantage over the Scott expedition." says Admiral Peary. power was dogs. His experience with them in the south proved their effectiveness as my experience did in the north. Captain Scott's equipment includes twenty ponies and thirty dogs, and one or two ice automobiles, giving him with his men four different kinds of tractive power for dragging his sledges. But the number of his dogs is comparatively few. Captain Amundsen lost thirty-six of his, or six more than Captain Scott took. The British seem to have put their main reliance on their ponies and their motors, and in this, while I may be mistaken, I feel both on general principles and from a study of Shackleton's experiences, that they may be handicapped.

BOARD OF INQUIRY,

Southern Pacific Company Institutes New Plan.

San Francisco. Boards of inquiry will hereafter be convened to ascertain the cause and fix the responsibility, where such immediate cause is not clearly manifest, for all accidents on the Southern Pacific, according to information made public in the general offices of the Southern Pacific. Full publicity as to the findings of such inquiry boards will also be

This is a new move on the part of the Southern Pacific and is in line with its policy of full publicity for accidents adopted several years ago. Following an accident that is not of minor consequence, the ranking official on the division on which the accident occurs shall convene the board, which board shall comprise two disinterested persons not connected with the railroad, and the division officers representing the operating, mechanical and engineering departments. The board must visit the scene of the accident and must take the testimony of employes and eye-witnesses, persisting in the investigation until the causes are determined. Should a diprising higher officials, shall be convened, and if the findings of the secand board be not conclusive, the general manager will convene a third board.

The instructions to officers who shall convene inquiry boards state specifically that the must be fixed regardless of individuals or interests affected. The findings must be turned over to the general manager and from the latter's office to the press. Prominent business men from the neighborhood in which an accident may occur usually sit as members of such boards, and of several inquiries already held the findings of these boards have all been unanimous
